FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Senator Cullum Says They Will Be Territorial, but Different From the Territories Here.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Senator Cullum, one of the commissioners sent to Hawaii by the United States government to examine into the condition of affairs of the islands and report as to the form of government that would be most suitable, arrived in this city on the steamer Galio, says that the commission has concluded its labors, and as a result of their observations they will recommend a territorial form of government, different from that of the territories in the United States—modified to suit the conditions of Hawaii. They will give particular attention to the changes necessary in the land, labor and navigation laws.

Senator Cullum was adverse to going into details on the scope of the legislation that will be recommended. He said:

"After arriving at the Hawaiian islands we met many people of various conditions and views whose sentiments were learned with interest. We visited the different islands of the group for the purpose of studying their resources and capabilities and the social and domestic condition of their inhabitants. We were particularly interested in ascertaining the temper of the people toward the United States.

"We investigated the situation carefully with a view of determining the questions we were specially charged with—what legislation in our judgment we ought to recommend congress to enact to make the best government for the newly acquired territory.

"While the commission has substantially determined the nature of the legislation that ought to be recommended to congress it is still not disposed to consider the subject entirely closed for the reason that the report has not yet been written and for the further reason that the two island members of the commission—Judge Frear and President Dole—expect to come to Washington in November when I, as chairman, intend to make a report to the full commission after which a report will be submitted to the president and to congress, when it convenes. I have stated that the commission will undoubtedly recommend a territorial form of government, but not the ordinary form that we have usually adopted for the management of our home territories, the conditions being so different in the matter of location and constituency.

"There are many interests to provide for. Some do not want the navigation laws changed. They prefer to permit shipping advantages to be accorded to others besides our country. We have likewise received petitions asking that none but American registered vessels be permitted to trade between the islands and other Americans ports.

"One of the most important questions is that of contract labor importation. I think that the laws now in force in the United States will apply to Hawaii as well. It would not do to have laws radically different for one little patch of country. In Hawaii those interested say they are attempting, since annexation, to prevent the importation of numbers of Japanese and Chinese under labor contracts. Maybe they are, but I know that on the steamer we came on there arrived from Japan 600 Japanese.
It seems probable that they are rushing in now in anticipation of a change in the immigration laws."

Her Twenty-Fifth Child.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Samuel Swartwood, wife of a railroad breakman, residing at Mountain Top, this county, has given birth to her twenty-fifth child. Of the large number of children born, only two sets were twins. Three of the children died. The rest are in good health. The father says he is the happiest man on earth with his large family.
